

FoDS 3 “Formal Diachronic Semantics” (13-14 September 2018)

Location: 12th floor of Niels Treschows hus, University of Oslo – Google Maps: <https://goo.gl/maps/7VEdrDgQfH42>

Thursday September 13		Friday September 14
09:45-10:00	opening remarks
10:00-11:15	Invited talk: Sigrid Beck (University of Tübingen)	10:00-10:50	Josh Phillips (Yale University): Privation to negation
11:15-11:35	coffee break	10:50-11:40	Alexandra Simonenko and Anne Carlier (FWO/Ghent and Uni Lille 3): Emergence of maximality: The case of French possessive determiners
11:35-12:25	Aynat Rubinstein and Ella Tzuberi (The Hebrew University of Jerusalem): Modal Meanings of Motion Verbs: A Study in Semantic Flexibility	11:40-12:00	coffee break
12:35-13:15	Josh Phillips (Yale University): Apprehensional BAMBAI: the epistemisation of a temporal frame adverbial	12:00-12:50	Urtzi Etxeberria (CNRS-IKER): Bare Nouns and the definite determiner: the case of Basque
13:15-14:45	lunch break	12:50-13:40	Alexey Kozlov (Institute of Linguistics, Russian Academy of Sciences): The development of exhaustivity: Russian imenno
14:45-15:35	Gunnar Lund, Rebecca Jarvis and Gregory Scontras (Harvard and UC Irvine): The progressive-to-imperfective shift: What computational pragmatics can tell us about diachronic semantics	13:40-15:10	lunch break
15:35-16:25	Łukasz Jędrzejowski (Universität zu Köln): From purposiveness to prospectivity	15:10-16:00	Achim Stein (University of Stuttgart): The development of the French passive: an event-semantic account
16:25-16:45	coffee break	16:00-16:20	coffee break
16:45-17:35	Remus Gergel (Saarland University): The diachronic semantics of African American English invariant be	16:20-17:35	Invited talk: Heather Burnett (CNRS)